Re: NPPF.

As a resident [REDACTED] backing onto open land this policy worries me greatly.

To be honest I did find the draft heavy going and hard to follow but the over all feel is that any further requests to build on such land will be encouraged or at least permission will be more easily granted if government see the development as beneficial to the community.

We have already protested against recent proposals for development on this land giving valid reasons as residents here. We get the feeling that we may have to put up more of a fight next time any proposals arise with less back up due to this new policy wording.

Any further guidance would be appreciated.

Thanks
